SESSION 1

The Challenges of Providing Special Designation for Veterans

Eric Malik Hutchinson, CASAC , CRPA, Elmcor Youth and Adult Activities, Inc.

Veterans have been a Special Service Population for quite some time. As war continues and our soldiers return home from combat, the unique circumstances with which they face on and off the battle fields continue to evolve. Us as Service Providers must continue to meet the unique demands of those we serve. This presentation will allow for the participants to see the need for continued innovative approaches to services for our Veterans in Recovery and possibly a Veterans Specific Recovery Services Designation: CRPA-V.

SESSION 2

Addiction Trends Amongst Veterans

Aynisa Leonardo, LCAT, ATR-BC, Director of Military Services, Long Island Center for Recovery

This presentation will focus on the diverse and complex needs experienced by veterans who are addiction survivors. Presenter will cover a range of traditional and progressive treatment options that are geared towards healing and recovery for these specialized needs. Presentation will discuss stigma, diagnosis, self-medicating, addiction statistics, resource availability, system barriers, and proactive loopholes to implementing best care practices.

Meet the New Boss, same as the Old Boss

Daniel Costello, LCSW, Outreach

This creative expression is meant to bring the gift we are given to facilitate healing in the veteran culture to a new level of effectiveness and power. In today's fast-paced world informed by state and federal regulations, how can practitioners blend neutral spiritual technologies (meditation, tai chi, reiki, etc.) with evidenced based practices (CBT, Seeking Safety, etc.) We are now seeing the more creative practitioners splicing meta-concept and thought changing practice in the short-term congruence of a therapeutic bond. These therapists are truly changing the lives and character of the veterans we are so honored to serve.

SESSION 1 Roadmap to Recovery: Stages of the Journey Across a Lifetime Ruth Riddick, CARC-RCP, Community Outreach & Communications, New York Certification Board Recovery is often viewed as an event rather than a process. Yet, professionals experienced in working with veterans and their unique challenges understand that building a new and rewarding life is a process. What if we could present veterans with a roadmap of that process from the very beginning? What if professionals had a clearer understanding of the milestones and tasks that veterans will accomplish in the recovery process, and how they can bring their special expertise to what is a diagramable journey across a lifetime? The Recovery Roadmap presented in the CCAR-Recovery Coach Academy© is a significant tool for deepening our understanding of recovery. The roadmap speaks to veterans and veterans’ service providers in clear, everyday language, delivering an accessible and realistic perspective beyond addiction and treatment into recovery across a lifetime.
SESSION 2 Veterans Benefits: Exploring the State and Federal Labryth Benjamin Pomerance, Deputy Director for Veterans Programs, New York State Division of Veterans Affairs This workshop will craft the often confusing myriad of benefits available for veterans on both the State and Federal levels. Included in the discussion will be" eligibility criteria, points of access, as well as an exploration of the critical issue of discharge status, its' impact upon bene its and how less-than-honorable discharges maybe challenged.

Supervision Issues when working with Veterans

Jessica Shuren, LCSW, CASAC, Site Director, Outreach

Since the inception of the OASAS Scope of Practice in July of 2018, service providers have likely experienced a reduction in the amount of staff who are available and qualified to perform supervisory duties. This field of qualified and knowledgeable supervisors may further be reduced when speaking about a program servicing veterans. The unique issues of trauma, transition, military culture, and substance abuse that face our veterans require education and experience with military issues. Supervision is a complex task that addresses all areas of an employee's responsibilities, as well as how their personal views and beliefs impact the work they are doing.

This presentation will explore issues related to supervision of staff who treat veterans, and identify potential challenges for the service provider and the supervisor, that may be impacted by the military status of one or both staff members. Specific areas that will be discussed include the service provider's potential over-identification with the client, the supervisor as a non-military member and having less knowledge of military culture than the supervisee, and the need to develop bi-directional learning within the supervisory relationship for the benefit of service recipients.
